

Finding qualified executive talent has always been tough for healthcare organizations, and with the recent challenges from COVID-19, that task has become exponentially more difficult. You may have specific, short-term needs for qualified experts in specific departments—or a longer-term need for an executive or C-suite position—and a provisional placement may be the right solution. Coker can assist you with interim needs you may have in areas of compliance and healthcare IT, as well as C-Suite executives. All our employees are working remotely and available to help in these challenging times.

How does a healthcare organization ensure continuity during times of crisis, rapid growth, change, or transition?

“ Healthcare organizations call on Coker Group interim management to maintain organizational momentum when mission-critical executives leave. ”

INTERIM MANAGEMENT SOLUTIONS FROM COKER GROUP

Experience is everything. Coker Group’s interim management solutions provide experienced senior healthcare executives for short- or longer-term assignments in hospitals, physician practices, and ancillary care facilities. Handling the COVID-19 pandemic is uncharted waters for most healthcare providers. Healthcare organizations need talented, experienced senior management in many areas as they deal with unanticipated and challenging issues in the next weeks and months. Our experienced healthcare executive management professionals bring:

EXPERTISE AVAILABLE IN DAYS

- From front-line, technical expertise to high-level strategic management skills, Coker Group interim management executives provide whatever abilities you need, whenever and wherever you need them.
- These executives are available for short- or longer-term assignments in hospitals, physician practices, and ancillary facilities.
- These individuals have a broad range of experience and an in-depth knowledge in a variety of areas related to healthcare organization management.